GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

If you retired on disability and reported your disability income in full on your federal income tax return, you may qualify to exclude a portion of your disability income from lowa tax. To qualify for the exclusion you must meet ALL of the tests below.

WHO CAN EXCLUDE DISABILITY?

You can take the exclusion if you meet all these tests:

- You received disability pay.
- You were not yet 65 when your tax year ended.
- You retired on disability and were permanently and totally disabled when you retired.
- On January 1 of this tax year, you had not yet reached the age when your employer's retirement program would have required you to retire.
- You took the exclusion in a prior year and did not elect to treat your disability income as a pension for federal purposes.
- If you were married at the end of the tax year you must have filed a joint federal income tax return for the tax year, unless you did not live with your spouse at any time during the year.

If you meet these tests you can take the exclusion until the earliest of the following dates:

- (1) The first day of the tax year in which you turn 65.
- (2) The first day of the tax year for which you choose to treat your disability income as a pension.
- (3) The day you reach the age when your employer's retirement program would have required you to retire.

WHAT IS PERMANENT AND TOTAL DISABILITY?

A person is permanently and totally disabled when:

- He or she cannot engage in any substantial gainful activity because of a physical or mental condition; and
- A physician determined that the condition (1) has lasted or can be expected to last continuously for at least a year; or (2) can be expected to lead to death.

TREATING DISABILITY INCOME AS A PENSION

In previous tax years federal law allowed you to elect to treat your disability income as a pension, subject to cost recovery, instead of taking the exclusion. For tax years 1984 and thereafter the same option exists for individuals receiving disability income. They may choose for federal tax purposes to either treat their disability income as a pension, or to take a disability income credit computed on federal Schedule R. If you elect to treat your disability income as a pension for federal tax purposes, or have elected to do so in a previous year, you cannot take the lowa disability income exclusion.

SPECIFIC INSTRUCTIONS

Line 1 — Enter your total disability income received in the tax year. If married and filing separately on the combined return form for lowa tax purposes, and both spouses receive disability income, report these amounts separately using both Columns 1 and 2.

Line 2 — You can exclude either your actual weekly disability pay or $100 a week, whichever is less. Use lines 2a, 2b, and 2c as applicable to figure your maximum exclusion.

Line 2c — If you received disability pay for part of a week, follow the steps below.

- Step 1. Divide $100 by the number of days a week you normally worked before you retired.
- Step 2. Divide the disability pay you received by the number of days it covered in that week.
- Step 3. Compare the Step 1 and Step 2 amounts. The smaller amount is your daily rate. Your exclusion for the week is based on it.
- Step 4. Multiply your daily rate by the number of days you received disability pay in the short week. The result is your exclusion for that week.
- Step 5. Add your exclusion for that week to your exclusion for any other short weeks. Enter the total on line 2(c).

Disability payments are made for part of a week when one of the following happens after the first day of the taxpayer's normal workweek:

- (1) The disability retirement begins.
- (2) The disability retirement ends because the taxpayer reaches required retirement age.
- (3) The taxpayer dies.

Line 2d — Add lines 2a, 2b, and 2c and enter total.

Line 3 — Add line 2d, Columns 1 and 2, and enter the total.

Line 4 — Generally, the maximum disability income exclusion is $5,200. This can increase to a maximum of $10,400 if married and both spouses receive disability income and qualify for the exclusion.

The maximum exclusion is reduced, dollar for dollar, by any amount over $15,000 on line 4a. That line shows your federal adjusted gross income.

Line 5 — Subtract the amount on line 4c from the amount on line 3. This is your disability income exclusion. Enter this amount on the appropriate line of your IA1040.

PHYSICIAN'S STATEMENT

Attach to Form IA 2440 a physician's statement of permanent and total disability. You can use the physician's statement on form IA 2440 for this purpose. If the physician's statement is on a separate form, be sure to attach the completed statement to form IA 2440 and file it with your tax return.

If the Veterans Administration certifies that you are permanently and totally disabled, you can file Form 6004 instead of the physician's statement. Form 6004 must be signed by a physician of the VA disability rating board. You can get Form 6004 from the Veterans Administration. If both taxpayer and spouse take the exclusion, each must file a statement.
